ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

The World Commission on Environment and Sustainable Development says “A sustainable society meets the need of the present without sacrificing the ability of future generation to meet their own needs”. Correlating with the above context to the tribal scenario we concern about the sustainable planning and development of Tribal communities with respect to their lifestyle and livelihood especially in context of Rajasthan. A complimentary adjustment is needed between the environment and organisms pertaining it. So, here we have included a wider perspective of climate change, water conservation, land uses for the betterment of the needy classes. So, all have to play the role in balanced proportion.

“We are the Keepers of this Earth. Those are divinely mandated instructions to us. We are at an incredible challenge at this point of our journey. We have been blessed by being Indigenous. What a blessing, and what a responsibility” - Dr. Henrietta Mann at the Native Peoples Native Homelands Climate Change Workshop, November 2009.

Our mission is to create awareness and support for Native environmental issues and to develop needed financial and political resources for the survival of sustainable Native communities. As tribal communities grow and we deepen our strategies and infrastructure for our Nations, it is essential for us to look at the world's economic and environmental realities in order to make critical decisions for our future. That means, we have to address issues of Tribal empowerment in current scenario. This conference explores 'Tribal and environmental issues' with special reference to tribal context recognizing their linkages, providing examples of tribal innovation and outlines options for tribal communities to create sustainable energy and socio-economic stability for this millennium and for the generations yet to come.
